

GREEN PAGES

A GUIDE TO GREEN LIVING IN KOSOVO

This guide was put together by volunteers of the UN Volunteer Programme and from The Ideas Partnership NGO. We also asked other NGOs working on environmental issues in Kosovo for information and contacted the Prishtinë/Priština Green Drinks mailing list for additional ideas and inputs. Our focus was on gathering information about services which can help people to live sustainably in Kosovo and which supports environmentally and socially responsible choices. As the guide is Kosovo specific we haven't included details on green living in general (e.g. turn the lights off when you leave the room, don't let the water run while you're brushing your teeth) which are readily available in other guides to green living.

We hope this guide will help you to live in Kosovo in a way which protects and prolongs the fragile environment here. We would like the guide to be a lasting resource. With this in mind we hope it will be updated by people adding new information to the online version which is available via the website of The Ideas Partnership www.theideaspartnership.org. We have made every effort to check the details here, but if you find an inaccuracy or something you think should be included which we've missed, please email theideaspartnership@gmail.com or post a comment online.

RECYCLING

Reduce, reuse and recycle

There are no public recycling facilities in Kosovo. Instead, hundreds of workers in Kosovo's informal sector sift through garbage in dumpsters and industrial waste tips to gather plastic, metal and glass they can sell on. So if you separate your waste at home first, you will contribute in some way to the effective sorting and recycling of Kosovo's waste. Below is a list of some recent recycling initiatives which are leading the way to a more eco-friendly Kosovo.

The Ideas Partnership recycling project

An income-generating project launched in May 2012 by the NGO, The Ideas Partnership, with funding from KFOS. 10 men from the Roma, Ashkali and Egyptian neighbourhood of Fushë Kosovë/Kosovo Polje will collect recyclable plastic bottles, white printer paper and metal using a bicycle and trailer and sell it on to a recycling company. If you're in the Prishtinë/Priština or Fushë Kosovë/Kosovo Polje area and want your waste to be collected on an ad-hoc or regular basis,

SRI Kosova

A sister company of SRI AG, Lucerne, Switzerland, collects recyclable waste such as paper, cardboard, plastic bottles, films, aluminium cans and processes and prepares them for recycling. The company is located in the industrial area in the direction of Fushë Kosovë/Kosovo Polje.

Plastika SHPK

Contact - Ruzhdi Thaqi P: 044 194 666 E: envricon@gmail.com

Kosova Cap Project

Collect your plastic bottle caps and donate them to the Kosova Cap Project. The aim of this project is to collect plastic bottle caps and trade them with a recycling company in exchange for wheelchairs for disabled Kosovars. The wheelchairs are bought with the profits from the recycled plastic. It takes 250kg of plastic bottle caps to gain one wheelchair.

Repair old clothes

To reduce waste from old clothes thrown away when they no longer fit you or have small defects, consider repairing before you replace. Kosovan tailors are very reasonably priced and there are many of them in major towns. The Ideas Partnership has also been supporting a project in the returnee village of Serbobran/Srbobran, near Istog/Istok with donated sewing machines and training. If you live or work nearby, then you can drop off your clothes for repair or arrange for collection and return in Prishtinë/Priština (though turnaround times depend on weekly visits to the village).

The stock ranges from parts of broken appliances and used roller skates to rusty tools and old leaky teapots. There is also a Secondhand Clothing Store/Stall in the Green Market with lots of clothes piled on top of each other and on outside racks.

PACKAGING

Kosovo has an inadequate waste management system, which means that plastic bags which enter the ecosystem are likely to end up snagged on trees, blooming in the fields or choking the waterways. Did you know that plastic takes 400 years to biodegrade? So...want to be plastic-bag free? Try reusable cloth bags or paper bags instead.

Cloth bags

The Ideas Partnership runs a micro-finance project where residents of the Roma village of Serbobran/Srbobran are making environmentally-friendly, reusable cloth bags. It means a little more employment for a village and a little less plastic for a country. Orders of bags can be personalized with a photo or logo.

‘Say NO to plastic bags’ campaign

Want to refuse plastic bags in shops? The Ideas Partnership can provide you with a card carrying the slogan “Say NO to plastic bags. Plastic bags become garbage in Kosovo’s fields, trees and rivers”. The accompanying Facebook group has the same slogan: ‘Thuaj JO qeseve të plastikës/ Say NO to plastic bags.’ Join the group if you’re interested, or contact them if you’d like some cards.

BUY LOCAL

There are several good reasons to buy locally in Kosovo. Fewer imports mean less transport pollution, lower carbon footprints and more self sufficiency and investment in the local economy. And did we mention how tasty the local produce is?

Asking for local produce

If you're in a shop and want to make a bid for local produce, you might find the following useful:

'Is this a local product?'

Albanian 'A është produkt vendor?' (phonetically 'ah usht proDUKT venDOR')

Serbian 'Da li je ovo proizvedeno na Kosovu?'

(phonetically 'da lee yeh ov-oh pro-iz-ved-en-oh nah Kosovoo?')

Drink local water...

There is a large range of locally sourced mineral water available in Kosovo and it is easy to ask for...cards are available from The Ideas Partnership which say "I want to drink Kosovan water: Dea, Bonita, Kllokot, Rugova, Akull...are fine for me and for the Kosovan economy." Filikaqa sports bar and the Amelie chain of cafes offer Kosovan water if you ask for it.

Eat and drink the excellent local produce...

such as Stone Castle and Eko wine, locally made Raki, Vita milk, Frutomania 100% juice and Dona juice or why not try Ajvar, a smoky relish made from locally grown red peppers. Kosovan honey is excellent and most is mixed with wildflower honey from bees that have foraged on a range of flowers. There is also a dark, nutty chestnut ('geshtenje') honey which goes particularly well on porridge and a fine acacia ('bagrem') honey. It's also possible to find delicious lavender honey from some beekeepers.

Check out the markets in Ulpiana or behind the Great Mosque in Prishtinë/Prishtina for fresh produce. The main green market and the wholesale vegetable and food market is on the road to Fushë Kosovë/Kosovo Polje behind UNMIK.

Or grow your own...

The Mazrekaj Kulla in Drenoc, near Deçan/Decane

A kulla is a fortified stone house, typical to Kosovo and northern Albania. Once common in much of the country, most kullas were knocked down or fell down in the conflict and afterwards. This one is a rare survivor, restored by Cultural Heritage Without Borders with a modern bathroom and kitchen where you can prepare your own food (though you can also order traditional meals to be delivered by a local women's co-operative). Downstairs, the former stable has been equipped with furniture and a PowerPoint screen for seminars. There are three double bedrooms plus the wonderful oda or men's meeting room, with original wood carvings and cushions, complete with a cosy wood burning stove in winter, and shuttered windows to open for summer evenings. Beds cost €15 per person per night for groups of up to 3, €10 per person per night for groups of 4-7 people. The seminar room can be rented for €25 for half a day. The kulla is close enough to Deçan/Decane to be easily combined with a visit to the UNESCO World Heritage Site monastery nearby.
